All relevant market data on agriculture and animal husbandry at a glance

DEUKA MARKET CHARTS EXPANDED AND WITH NEW LOOK

Up-to-date market information is essential for successful business management. This is especially true in times of volatile markets. For this reason, we offer visitors to our website a wide selection of relevant market data on animal husbandry and agriculture for their operational planning. With the current update of the market charts, we are expanding the range of information with additional commodities, improving the visual appearance and simplifying navigation.

This is new for our markcharts

- New look for overview pages

Probably the most important adjustment is the fundamental redesign of the overview page. All graphs are now displayed individually, in a clearly structured grid. This makes it even easier and faster to grasp all market developments. The data of a month, a year or beyond: the time interval for each graph can be set individually and customized. The trend boxes, which are also new, show not only the current closing price but also the exact price development of the preset time interval.

- Automated conversion into euros per ton

All data from the Chicago Board of Trade (CBOT) - the world's oldest futures exchange in Chicago - is given in dollars and American units. With the help of a toggle switch, the website now converts the American values into euros per ton - all fully automatically. The system takes into account historical exchange rates from the last two years.

- New market data completes offer

With rapeseed meal and wheat bran, the market values of two further raw materials can now be found on our website. The range of information on oils has also been expanded. With "Crude Oil Brent", the value of Europe's most important type of crude oil is now also given on www.deuka.de.

- Detail pages: Now even more clearly structured

We have also optimized the look of the detail pages. A more generous cut gives all elements of our detail pages more space. This improves navigation for visitors and organizes all the information displayed in a meaningful way. In addition to the current contract dates, historical course data can also be found here in a comprehensible and tabular form.
